Specialize in Print Journalism, Multimedia/Web Journalism, Photojournalism, or Broadcast Journalism

The field of journalism and mass communication constantly changes. Technology has made the profession faster, more exciting, and more rewarding.

Explore a future in journalism this summer at Point Park University from June 19 – 24. We will work hard and enjoy ourselves during our 2011 summer journalism workshop for print, web, broadcast, and photojournalism.

Students will enjoy the allure of college life while staying in the residence halls for these workshops. We will work day and night with some time for fun and exploration, too. Students will leave Point Park with a publication, Web site, photo galleries or a short TV and radio program created during these six days. They will have the experience of having developed, researched and completed major teen-related stories. Students will meet media professionals and learn the value of networking. Students will gain real-life hands-on journalistic expertise and improve their chances to win awards, scholarships and honors. They will return to school ready to energize their own school publications and broadcasts.

Workshop tuition is $350, which includes a dormitory room for the week, flex dollars for meals and social activities. Students are eligible for scholarships to help reduce the costs.
