From Consumption to Compassion: Revisioning Ourselves in the Age of Consumerism

Alan Pope, Ph.D., is an Associate Professor of Psychology and member of the graduate faculty at the University of West Georgia. He received his Ph.D. in clinical existential-phenomenological psychology at Duquesne University in 2000 following advanced graduate studies in computer science and artificial intelligence (Ph.D./ABD). His recent studies have examined various aspects of Western psychology and culture through the lens of Indo-Tibetan Buddhist philosophy, a tradition which he has studied and practiced since 1991. He is the author of From Child to Elder: Personal Transformation in Becoming an Orphan at Midlife (2006, Peter Lang) and is currently working on a book examining modern consumerism from a Buddhist perspective. In 2009, he received APA Division 32’s Carmi Harari Early/Mid-Career Award for Outstanding Contribution to Inquiry in Humanistic and Transpersonal Psychology.

For more information contact Dr. Robert McInerney (Adviser) at rmcinerney@pointpark.edu or Ashley Bobak (Chair) at albobak@pointpark.edu