STUDENT GUIDE

OFFICE OF STUDENT CONDUCT

(412) 392-8029
studentconduct@pointpark.edu

BACKGROUND

College is a time of learning, self development and trying new experiences. Everyone comes to college with certain expectations. No one ever plans on getting in trouble, but unfortunately, it happens. If you or a friend have been reported to the Office of Student Conduct, this guide will help in preparation of the next steps.

Student Rights

- To attend class free of disruptions.
- To live in residence halls that are conducive to study and socializing.
- To receive written documentation of any behavioral incidents.
- To be afforded the University's student conduct process before being permanently removed from a class or the University.
- To allow access to only the people you want to read your student conduct record.

FERPA

Unlike high school, Point Park University does not contact your parent(s) or guardian(s) whenever you potentially violate University policy. Only in extreme cases dealing with medical issues or your endangerment will we contact them. All other situations would require you to sign a FERPA release form. Contact the Office for more information.

Process Outline

- Student receives charge letter.
- Student attends student conduct meeting.
- A decision is made whether student is in violation or not in violation of the charges.
- Student attends follow-up meeting.
- Student completes sanctions.

HOW STUDENTS CAN PREPARE

It is a common misconception that the Office of Student Conduct operates similar to a court of law. Procedures and rights in student conduct procedures are conducted with fairness to all, but do not include the same rules of due process afforded by the courts. The following is a list of things students can do to prepare for their student conduct meetings.

- Contact your Student Conduct Officer to request an informational meeting prior to your student conduct meeting to view your file, ask any questions, go over the charges and review the process.
- Decide if there are any appropriate and relevant witnesses who could speak about the incident at the student conduct meeting. Character witnesses are not permitted.

STUDENT CONDUCT MEETINGS

Each student conduct meeting will consist of a formal non-adversarial meeting between the charged student and a Student Conduct Officer. This meeting is for the student to present their side of what happened at the incident.

- Students who do not show up will be deemed to have not contested the allegation(s) against them.
- Students will be asked whether they plead In Violation or Not In Violation to the charges against them.
- Students will be asked to describe what happened in the incident.
- SC Officer will speak about incident with student.
- SC Officer will schedule a follow-up meeting.

During the follow-up meeting with their SC Officer, students will receive their sanction letter detailing whether they were found In Violation or Not In Violation of the charges. If students are found to be In Violation, a list of sanctions to be completed will be included with the appropriate dates. Failure to complete sanctions may result in additional action.

AMNESTY

In special circumstances, the University may not bring charges against a student if they were involved in a more serious incident. The following is a list of those exceptions.

For Victims

Someone who could be hesitant to report to University officials because they fear they may be accused of minor policy violations, such as underage drinking, at the time of the incident.

For Those Who Offer Assistance

Someone who offers help to others in need can be granted amnesty for minor violations.

For Those Who Report Serious Violations

Students who are engaged in minor violations but who report serious violations by others to the University's attention may be offered amnesty for their minor violations.

Safe Harbor

Any University student who brings their own use, addiction or dependency to the attention of University officials, outside the threat of drug tests or conduct sanctions, and seeks assistance, a conduct complaint may not be pursued.

*Abuse of amnesty requests can result in a decision by the Director of Student Conduct not to extend amnesty.
