PROGRAM OBJECTIVES

Upon successful completion of this program, a student will be able to:

1. Demonstrate a firm grounding in the Liberal Arts and Social Sciences in general as the foundation and background for understanding Legal Studies in particular, as this engages the relationship of law to social, philosophical, political, scientific, and professional studies.
2. Articulate and demonstrate fluency in writing, expression, and research in order to present and support effectively ideas in both written and oral argument formats.
3. Formulate, research, defend and substantiate thesis positions and interpretation, and express the relationship of interpretation and analysis to theory, tradition and practice. Show the ability to apply advanced critical thinking skills to analysis of the issues of law that are presented.
4. Develop familiarity with seminal cases in American constitutional law and those that illustrate the most basic areas of criminal and civil law such as contract, tort and property law.
5. Understand, demonstrate and apply different methods of legal interpretation including historic and sociological jurisprudence, textual analysis, and precedent by the use of relevant case study as applied to practical as well as theoretical legal issues.
6. Understand, appreciate, and apply the political structure, procedure, social norms and mandates to the defense, justification for, and exercise of law to practical ends.
7. Understand, explain and apply specific structures and procedures of law on the federal level in the United States and specifically in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.
8. Situate chosen areas of expertise in Legal Studies to the greater context of Liberal and Humanistic studies, in terms of social order, values, fundamental human, as well as property rights, and the exercise thereof in a democratic society.
